DIRECTOR'S NOTES

Nineteen-eighty-six was the year of the veteran. Seven years after winning his first Syttende Mai, Tom Antczak returned to win his third at age thirty-five. New records were set by both male and female in the 60 through 64 age categories. Joseph Powers bettered the previous record by three minutes and thirteen seconds while Agnes Reinhard erased thirty-eight minutes and three seconds from the previous mark! Also Carol Klitzke reduced the 35 through 39 record by fifty-two seconds, and Kathy Soderbloom improved her previous record in the 45 through 49 age group by a minute and a half.

The select group of runners who have completed all fourteen Syttende Mai Runs remained the same. These enduring athletes have now collectively logged one thousand six hundred and eighty miles while running from Madison to Stoughton every year around May 17th since 1973! We salute:

Paul Croissant, 30, Madison
 Bill Kohrs, 60, Madison
 Peter Senzig, 44, Madison

Richard King, 65, Chicago
 Dobbin McNatt, 48, Middleton

Antczak wins Syttende Mai

STOUGHTON — As the rain picked up its pace, strafing the grounds at Mandt Park and opening umbrellas like they were spring flowers, Tom Antczak took a sip of mineral water and called his day a success.

Winning has a way of brightening the lousiest of days.

Running through heavy air and light showers, Antczak, 35, won the annual 20-mile Syttende Mai run from Madison to Stoughton on Saturday. A time of 1 hour, 48 minutes, 29 seconds gave Antczak his third victory in the event since 1979. He also won in 1981 and finished second in 1983.

Antczak, a former La Crosse resident now living in Rockford, Ill., finished 2:51 ahead of Bill Wilke, the runner-up from Madison.

Dr. David Allen of Madison, winner of the last two Syttende Mai races, is vacationing in Mexico and did not compete.

Mary Gellerup, 23, of Columbus, surprised herself by being the first woman to cross the finish line. A former track and cross country athlete at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Gellerup ran past Mary Bange, last year's winner, at the eight-mile mark and never looked back. She finished in 2:13:21.

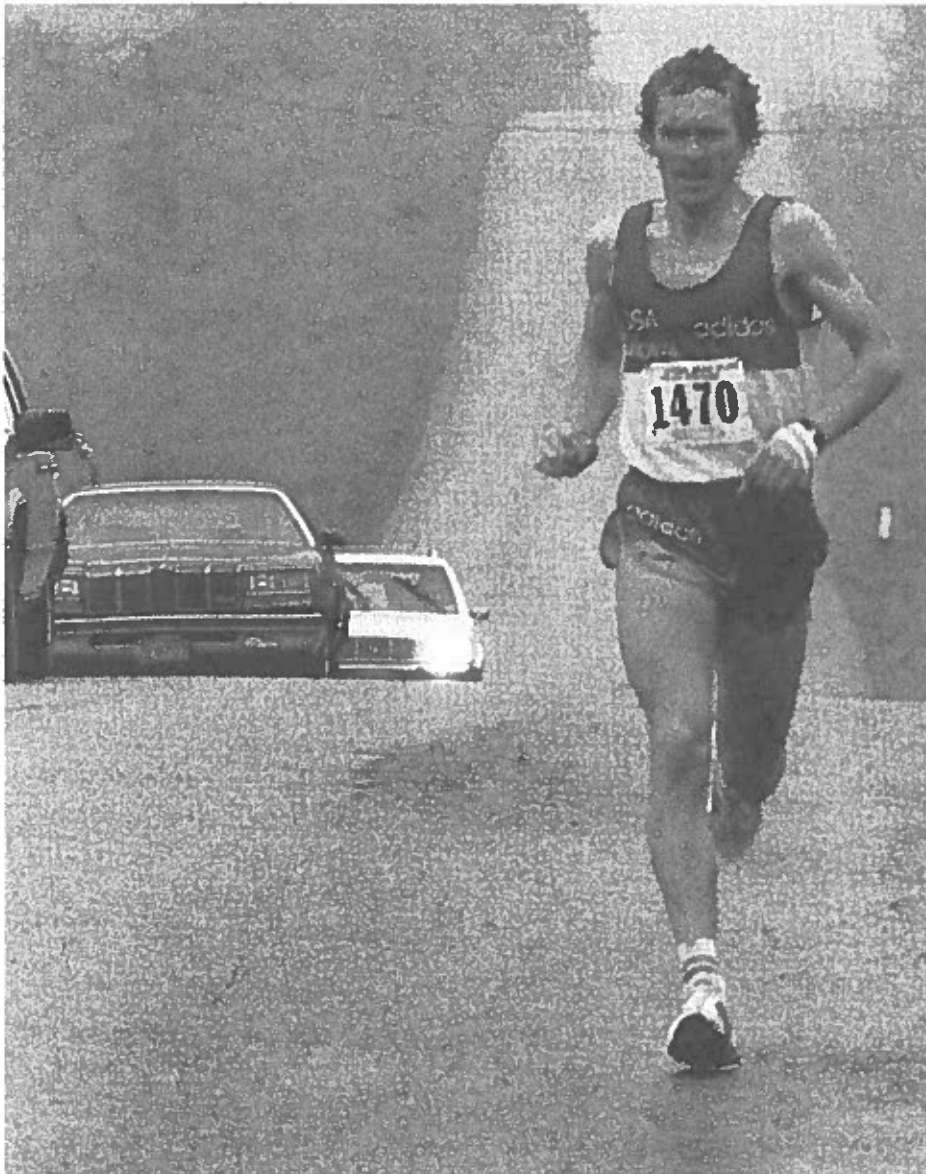

The run, which drew 1,472 entries, is part of Stoughton's celebration of its Norwegian heritage.

Until a few days ago, Antczak was going to pass up this race. He injured his hip during a run in Monona recently and couldn't seem to shake the problem.

"It would start to bother me after 25 or 30 minutes of running and I would have to stop. I would lose power," Antczak said.

But Antczak, who finished fifth in last year's race, decided a couple of days ago he was feeling good enough to run. He inserted hip lifts in his shoes and hoped for the best.

Antczak, an exercise physiologist, took the lead after the 3/4-mile mark and pulled steadily away. His main concern was the air, which hung thick throughout the race and made the going difficult at times.

A nationally-ranked marathoner who skipped the 1984 Syttende Mai in order to run in the Olympic trials, Antczak is looking to get back into serious competition. He would like to challenge for an Olympic berth in 1988.

"I think I still have a few good races left in me," Antczak said.

Gellerup surprised not only the field, but herself as well.

Before Saturday's run, her longest competitive run was 11 miles. So when she passed Bange early, Gellerup's initial thought was not encouraging.

"I hoped I wasn't doing something stupid by going out so fast, but I felt great," Gellerup said.

A journalism graduate who took over as editor of the Columbus newspaper last month, Gellerup has been itching to mix it up in the longer distances. She has been running 70 miles a week training for what she hopes will be a spot as a regular on the marathon circuit.

"That's what I would love," Gellerup said.

Other notable performances were turned in by:

- Joe Powers, 62, of Oak Park, Ill., who ran 2:18:54, a course record for his age group and the second-fastest time recorded nationally.

- Mary Callen, 32 of Wauwatosa, ran 3:24:57 to finish 1,208th overall. She is blind.
